Over the years, India has earned the distinction of being one of the top engineers-producing countries, with the largest number of engineering education institutes and infrastructure in the world. According to estimates, India annually produces 1.5 million engineering graduates. About 90% of these engineering graduates come from private and non-autonomous engineering education institutes, which are regarded as the bedrock of Indian engineering prowess. In view of the presence of thousands of such engineering institutes, the aspirants are often at the cross-roads when it comes to deciding and zeroing in on the best ones of them to pursue higher studies in engineering. As such, we present a list of leading, eminent and well-known engineering institutes, as above, to help the engineering aspirants make an informed decision vis-a-vis the choice of the institutes to study in.
